

dDamage

Biography¹

When the breakbeats meet Sonic Youth...

Harsh Reality Of Daily Life will make your ear drums pop to the sound of saturated rhythms, distorted guitars, damaged synthesizers, along with crazy samples and other various informal sounds.

Experimental hip-hop and lo-fi Electronica merge wildly into a dark and explosive album, that was composed by the two brothers in arms from DDAMAGE: the Hanak Brothers...

As it can be heard in Tchitchouchki, one of the most representative track of their record, the band's deconstructed beats blow up the spot, getting to the edge of classical breakbeats of abstract hip-hop so much so that they come close to industrial music...

Doin' damage in the place to be.

selected discography :

1999 – Cd – reverbreak this beat down (grafted records).

1 Original text published on the Alice In Wonder web site (<http://www.alice-in-wonder.com>)